Dear Sir/Madam, As per my objections to the previous licence application at this address, I am particularly concerned about the potential use of the back garden area for customer seating and customers consuming food and drink outside, which seems to have been enabled by introducing a restaurant seating area at the back with connecting doors to the external area. As [REDACTED] neighbour with young children, I am particularly concerned about noise creating a nuisance, with our bedrooms facing to the back, but also when using our own garden during the day, particularly at weekends. Furthermore the separating wall between our garden and the restaurant's is below eye height and public access would enable anyone visiting the restaurant to look into our back garden. Combined with the potential for noise nuisance, swearing, but also smells etc. this would feel like a serious invasion of our privacy. Were the licence granted purely on the basis of seating on the street front, I would have no objections. Kind regards
