

06-04-26

Willesden Green streets have become scary for women to walk alone at night and this will simply exacerbate this issue. Increasing the number of addicted men being angry after losing in the streets is an irresponsibility. If the government is committed to protect women and girls, this should never go ahead.