Introduction

The municipal year of 2015-2016 has been one of steady progress for scrutiny in Brent. However, half way through we suffered a setback that no one could have anticipated or imagined, when our much loved and admired chair, Cllr Dan Filson sadly passed away.

Dan (and woe betide you if you ever called him Daniel) was a ward colleague, a mentor and most of all a friend to me.

A councillor more suited to the role of scrutiny chair you could never imagine. He had a forensic eye for detail, a passion for getting to the truth and a cheeky sense of humour which would disarm any witness coming under the gaze of his committee.

Most of all he was absolutely determined to make the scrutiny work, his mantra was that scrutiny had been “the lion which failed to roar”, but this was something he certainly began to put right during his short time as committee chair.

I had hoped to serve under his chairmanship on the committee for many years, but following his sudden and tragic death I was elected to succeed him, and hope I have built on his legacy in the role.

Of course I have not done this alone. All of the councillors who have sat beside me on the committee have been dedicated, diligent and hardworking, and Brent’s “Team Scrutiny” does not finish there. We now have a team of officers – Pascoe, Kisi and James – who are passionate about the scrutiny process and take huge pride in seeing positive change delivered within the council.

This report summarises the work of Overview and Scrutiny over the last year, what we looked at, how we came to some of our biggest decisions, and what reforms we have carried out. It will also look at some of the biggest challenges for the year ahead.

Part One – The Year Just Gone

Reports

Under the structure of a single committee, scrutiny was called upon to look at a wide range of issues cutting across many departments in the year 2015/2016, as shown in appendix 1. Unfortunately, these items have not always been balanced completely across the various portfolios on the council's cabinet.

Lead Member/Portfolio	No. of Items
Cllr Butt – Leader	1
Cllr Denselow – Stronger Communities	2
Cllr Hirani – Adults Health &amp; Well being	9
Cllr Mashari – Employment &amp; Skills	2
Cllr McLennan – Housing and Development	3
Cllr Moher – Children and Young People	7
Cllr Pavey – Deputy Leader	6
Cllr Southwood – Environment	8
Grand total	38

It will be important to ensure that every department receives adequate scrutiny in the coming year. A complete balance – with each portfolio responding to an equal number of reports - is probably not possible, given the number of statutory items, particularly in the realm of health, which scrutiny must consider.

Task Groups

Three new task groups were set up at the start of the municipal year, focussing on issues at the top of residents' list of priorities – if the contents of the average councillor's email inbox are anything to go by.

The first, chaired by Cllr Reg Colwill, investigated the access to extended GP services and primary care in Brent. The review was concerned with the capacity in Brent, out of hours care and the delivery of out-of-hospital services to provide enhanced and extended care to meet the needs of local residents. His report made fourteen recommendations across Brent's healthcare providers for improving extended GP access. The committee welcomed all recommendations, nine of which have now been successfully implemented providing residents with improved access.

The second, chaired by Cllr Sam Stopp, investigated the nefarious problem of fly tipping. His report came up with a range of solutions to address this problem and will perhaps be best remembered for recommending that the council radically changes the language it uses when addressing this issue. The committee were enthused by his idea that the term "fly tipping" be dropped in favour of "illegal rubbish dumping" as this has more impact and emphasises that dumping waste on the street is a crime.

The third, chaired by myself, investigated the council's CCTV policies. My task group made twenty-two recommendations, about half of which the cabinet member endorsed and was able to implement fairly quickly. The other half included what I admit are more ambitious ideas, such as monetising the infrastructure of the council's CCTV network to fund more cameras, and will therefore take more time.

At future Scrutiny Committee meetings we will be bringing in both the CCTV and Illegal rubbish dumping cabinet members to report on their progress on implementing the recommendations in these reports. The Access to GP services progress will be reported back to the Health and Wellbeing Board.

Towards the end of the year we set up two further task groups. The first, chaired by Cllr Tom Miller is looking into the performance of housing associations in the borough and will report back to the Community and Wellbeing Committee in the near future.

The second, chaired by Cllr Harbi Farah, will report back to the Resources and Public Realm Committee.

In each case, the task group chairs have sought to open up their investigation process to the residents. Whereas previously task groups deliberated privately, many of these meetings were held in public with representatives from local resident groups being asked to sit on the panel with equal status to the councillors.

I think this is a tremendously positive move and I will encourage all future task groups to follow this policy.

Budget Scrutiny Panel

In December 2015 I put together and chaired the Budget Scrutiny Panel, a cross party group of backbench councillors, to analyse the budget documents being prepared for the April 2016 budget.

The panel met twice formally and further corresponded by email and telephone when producing this report. The panel interviewed the council's Chief Executive and Chief Financial Officer in person. Further information on various issues was also sought and delivered from officers.

This was the second half of a two year budget and so the list of savings proposed was not as long or daunting as in previous years. We analysed all proposed savings from the start of the process and were pleased to see progress in most areas. Only a few projects – for example the establishment of an ethical lettings agency – were seen to be badly behind schedule, and so we asked for a further report on this to come back for full scrutiny. This is now expected to come to the Community and Well Being Scrutiny Committee.

The panel were particularly interested in the idea of income generation – which will never be able to balance out cuts from central government but will certainly help us to become financially independent – and we received some favourable local press coverage due to our recommendation that the council look more closely at maximising the potential of the civic centre as a venue for weddings and receptions.

We also recommended the council uses its new powers to carry through a council tax rise, which came to pass in the final budget.

Call In

The committee only called in one cabinet report in this year. This was on proposals to use a contractor to set up new uniformed street patrols to issue on the spot fines for people committing environmental crimes like littering.

Our concerns were partially about the process, namely we felt it was unfair that cabinet were citing scrutiny (particular the task group completed by Cllr Stopp as mentioned above) for recommending the idea, but had then given us no formal, or even informal, role in developing the final policy.

But most of all we were concerned that the new uniformed officers may be on inferior pay, terms and conditions to existing council officers performing similar roles.

After questioning the cabinet member and lead officers extensively on the subject we made a recommendation that the twelve month trial go ahead to test the viability of the idea but with a very strong preference for an in-house option to run the service in future if it turns out to be a success. We believed this would be the most cost effective solution and ensure that workers receive the remuneration and conditions we would expect.

It will continue to be our policy that call-ins should be used sparingly, on issues which members are clearly concerned about and where there is a sense of urgency about the need to intervene.

Other recommendations

Through questioning of witnesses at our public meetings some further recommendations emerged which we put to the Cabinet. This included the setting up of direct debits by which residents can pay their green waste charges, so they do not need to re-buy a permit every single year.

We were also alarmed to discover, through one of our public meetings, that officers have delegated authority to sign off on changes to contracts worth up to £250,000.

Our whole Committee felt, even where this power was used sensibly, that this was too high a figure for decisions to be taken by someone not directly accountable to the public through the ballot box. Therefore we asked Cabinet to conduct a review into whether this should be lowered in the constitution and await their response.

Engaging with the public

In addition to opening up task group meetings to the public, we have worked hard this year to increase public awareness of the process of scrutiny in Brent, and allow them to participate.

At the beginning of the year, Cllr Filson toured all of the Brent Connects public forums to explain the scrutiny process and how people could suggest items for us to look at.

We are repeating the exercise this year, with myself, or Cllr Ketan Sheth, addressing each of these meetings around Brent as the two scrutiny chairs.

Reform

At the beginning of the municipal year we had just one Overview and Scrutiny Committee.

This brought about a series of challenges, most acutely that of capacity. With just one Committee meeting ten times per year, and with several statutory reports already set on the agenda, it was difficult to find the time to look at all of the areas which members and the public would expect us to analyse.

Cllr Filson and I both favoured the creation of a separate Health Scrutiny Committee to resolve this issue. It was felt that this would not only overcome the problems of capacity and allow more backbenchers to become involved in the scrutiny process, but also allow the group on the second committee to develop a real understanding and expertise in health policy.

Following discussions with senior officers and the Leader of the Council, the old committee's workload was divided into two, and the total number of annual meetings increased to twelve.

One of these committees, on Health and Wellbeing, will particularly focus on health issues, and the other, on Resources and Public Realm, will look at the Council's big spending projects.

I am confident this will allow Brent's "team scrutiny" to work more efficiently and effectively over the next twelve months.

Part Two – The Year To Come

Improvements Implemented

During the last year, the council receive an assessment from a Local Government Association (LGA) peer review team. As part of this process I met with the team individually as Chair of Scrutiny, and also collectively with representatives from the wider committee. Through this I picked up some suggestions about how we could improve the quality of our reports and I intend to implement these in the coming year.

Firstly, the LGA team noted that there was often frustration, occasionally leading to distrust, between members and officers regarding the content of reports.

I believe that most of this is entirely innocent and accidental. In the past, officers have simply been provided with a title upon which to base their report, and these are often very open – for example "Affordable Housing in Brent". They write this report to the best of their ability but find that when they get to the Committee, members have anticipated an entirely different set of information as they have interpreted the title of the document differently.

To resolve this, I have asked officers to develop a pro-forma which can be used whenever a new scrutiny report is requested by a member. This form allows them to state specifically what they expect to be included in the report, including statistics and figures they believe should be provided.

I am confident that this will help both officers tasked with writing the reports, and members in getting the information they need.

Secondly, the LGA team felt that our choice of topics was done slightly haphazardly, with lots of worthy things being discussed, but the full list not being thought through carefully and strategically.

This was of course partly to do with the time constraints of the single committee model, but even with added capacity I was determined that the new committees think more carefully about what they needed to look at in the coming year.

Our scrutiny officers therefore organised fantastic events for each committee where strategic directors gave us an outline of the main issues in their departments, and members could also suggest any topic they felt worthy.

Through this we developed a long list of ideas and then whittled this down to a list of items we will examine at Committee through reports, and those which we will examine through Task Groups over the coming municipal year. This schedule also leaves space in the programme for us to add further reports, look at urgent issues or call-in requests.

The shortlist for the Resources Public Realm Committee is given in Appendix 2, it is listed in no particular order and the items will be allocated to specific meetings in the near future.

Recommendations – LGA Peer Review

Further to the LGA peer review, I have also been allocated a mentor who is an experience Chair of Scrutiny in another London Borough which the LGA regard to be an example of best practice.

In my discussions with this mentor it has become clear to be that verbal recommendations made in Committee meetings by a vote of members have much greater standing in other authorities. Previously recommendations made in this way by Scrutiny in Brent have not made it on to the papers for Cabinet to respond to.

I will ensure that at future meetings all verbal recommendations are recorded and distributed to the committee for approval, and then that they go forward to the cabinet meeting.

Budget

As noted above, the work of the Budget Scrutiny Panel was quite truncated in the last municipal year. For many reasons this was unavoidable, as there was a vacancy for chair for some time following the death of Cllr Filson.

This year I intend to start the review much earlier and use this time to more thoroughly question cabinet members putting forward suggestions for new cuts, charges or savings.

Furthermore, during last year's budget setting process, scrutiny had to work hard to assert itself and ensure that its views were being heard.

Our panel noted with concern that the "budget setting timetable" set out on page 30 of the cabinet report on the budget did not mention the scrutiny process at all, or note that the committee was due to interview the Deputy Leader of the Council on the subject at our January 2016 meeting.

Hopefully lessons have been learned, and next year scrutiny will be seen as a positive critical friend, and essential part of the process.
